Sun Collection

In recent years, important scientific studies have shown that some UV filters damage coral reefs.

A first important response to this problem came from the Hawaiian Islands that approved the first Law - which came into force on January 1st, 2021 - prohibiting the use of UV filters like oxybenzone (benzofenone-3) and octinoxate (ethylhexyl methoxycinnamate).

ESTÈREL has chosen to respect such fragile environment and created this innovative SUN COLLECTION, being among the first Cosmetic Companies in eliminating such harmful UV filters.

ADDITIONAL INFO

The active ingredient common to all the cosmetics of the SOLE COLLECTION is the MARITIME PINE EXTRACT: functional ingredient extracted from the bark of the Maritime Pine (Pinus Pinaster); it is an efficient free radical scavenger;
it improves skin hydration;
it protects and soothes the skin by counteracting the typical signs of chrono and photo-aging.

ADDITIONAL INFO

THE IMPACT OF THE MOST SUNSCREENS ON THE ENVIRONMENT

- puts at risk microalgae and microorganisms that make up phytoplankton (which gives color to corals);
- directly damages corals;
- It acts as an endocrine disruptor for many marine organisms, including fish, causing hormonal imbalances.

THE SUN FILTERS USED FOR ESTÈREL SUN COLLECTION DO NOT DAMAGE THE MARINE ENVIRONMENT

ADDITIONAL INFO

THE SUBSTANCES UNDER ACCUSATION:

Oxybenzone

Octinoxate

4-Methylbenzylidene camphor

Octocrylene

Some mineral filters such as zinc oxide and titanium dioxide are also to be avoided if they are in the form of nanoparticles, otherwise they are considered "sea friendly".

ESTÈREL SUN COLLECTION DOES NOT CONTAIN ABOVE SUBSTANCES

ADDITIONAL INFO

The law passed in Hawaii is based on a 2015 study that showed that certain chemicals were able to damage corals, bleaching and genetically modifying them.

Sexual mutations were also found in male fish, changes in neurological behaviors and increased reproductive difficulties in sea creatures, from parrotfish to Hawaiian monk seals to sea turtles.

The study showed that oxybenzone has a toxic effect at a concentration of 62 parts out of a trillion, equal to one drop in seven Olympic-size swimming pools.
